

“...what if we said ‘leader’ and that word connected with someone who was conscious that publicly enacting feminine values made her (or him) more vulnerable and less valued, and did it anyway, intentionally and respectfully?” ~Mary Pierce Brosmer, founder of WWf(a)C

Conscious Feminine Leadership Academy

a program of Women Writing for (a) Change®

Class of 2017

Application form

Name	email	age (optional)
------	-------	----------------

Address

Phone # most appropriate

I am applying to be accepted for this course with the goal of:

_____ gaining skills and insight for my work in _____ (what field?)

_____ gaining skills and insight during my transition from _____ to _____ _____ furthering my understanding and practice of the Conscious Feminine _____ starting my own affiliate program

Please write the following in essay form. Your words will be held with the respect, appreciation and confidentiality which are hallmarks of WWf(a)C in its 25 year history. There are no “trick” questions or “right” answers. Your application should tell us more about who you are and how your dreams, hopes, values and stories flow into this kind of deep work. Remember to also attach your resume.

1. Write a short autobiography which gives insight into how your life has led you to this present moment of desiring to commit to CFLA. (Why? Why now?)
2. Describe your relationship to writing.
3. What do you read?
4. Write about your relationship to spirituality and/or religion.
5. Write about your relationship to Feminism—the word, the idea as you understand it.
5. What reservations do you have about this commitment? What hopes?
6. What are your coping strategies for dealing with physical and emotional discomfort: the stress of new challenges, difficult people, less-than-perfect weather, food or beds?
7. Capture in one sentence who you are and want to be more fully in the world?
8. Write a list of questions which came up for you as you were preparing for this.